Looking for a hobby that's fun and challenging? Come and Join the Adventures of an RC Hobby Enthusiast! Did you know that all types of miniature vehicles have had RC components installed in them, including cars, planes, boats, helicopters and even scale model trains? No matter how old we get, we all still have some kid in us that likes to have fun with an adult version of a kids toy. Have you ever imagined what it would be like to build your own Radio Controlled vehicle? While a lot of people tend to think of Radio controlled vehicles as kids toys, the ones for adults are really a bit different. While a child's toy is usually not very sturdy, a Hobby grade Radio controlled vehicles will be made of strong materials, and they are usually custom made. With the interest in this hobby growing every day, you can now find just about every RC model is available as either a toy grade or hobby grade model whether it's a car, helicopter, boat, airplane or robot. Remote controlled airplanes can be found in just about every size and shape from fairly small to gas turbine driven models for aerobatics. Most hobbyists prefer to buy the individual parts and assemble their RC models themselves. While the use of Radio Control has been around since the 1800, it wasn't until about the 1990's that technology advanced to the point that miniaturized equipment became widely available, allowing radio control of the smallest models, and by the 2000s radio control was commonplace even for the control of inexpensive toys.
