Make Money Trading Options With The Options Trading Secrets Guide INTRO SAMPLE There are many futures options techniques that can be profitable. They can range from buying and selling options based on volatility to trading ratio backspreads based on the technical analysis of the underlying futures market. One way is to trade spreads that can profit from time decay. You can sell options which you believe will lose more time value than the options you buy. The key is to find techniques that have an advantage when you put the trade on. What I will discuss are futures options trades that have this advantage. Trades that have a special quality that you can spot before you enter into it. You will be able to see what options are cheaper or more expensive compared to another option. Not by price or volatility necessarily but by the price per day. Even though an option might be more expensive than another, it might be cheaper in terms of volatility or price per day. Keep your eyes open to things other than the price of the option. Look at the deltas and theta as well. Before I explain some techniques to use based on delta and theta, I would like to define the terms in case you are not familiar with them.
