You could even make seven figures --- over a million dollars for twenty pages of text. It sounds incredible, but a fast seven figures is certainly possible if you have a HOT, hot idea or have had an experience that hundreds of thousands of people want to read about. In his 2001 book about writing non-fiction, Damn! Why Didn't I Write That?, author Marc McCutcheon says that its not hard to make a good income writing non-fiction: you can learn the trade and begin making a respectable income much faster than most people think possible. Do you need experience to sell a book on proposal? No! You just need a good proposal. :-)

Imagine --- in seven days, you could be sending your proposal to agents and editors! The ebook includes everything you need to know. Just follow the easy steps. It even includes a sample proposal, which got a contract from an agent immediately it was sent out. You can do it too! Heres what youll discover in How to Write and Publish Your Own Books Day One: Whats a book proposal? Develop an idea for your book Exactly what a book proposal is, and an EASY way for you to come up with more saleable ideas for books than you could write in a dozen lifetimes. Day Two: Develop your idea and assess the market Heres an excerpt from Day Two: Dispelling myths and a word about confidence if youre feeling nervous now that youre about to start this project, relax. Tell yourself that you will take it step by step. All you need to do is work at it steadily, a word, sentence and paragraph at a time, and you will complete your proposal, and then when youve sold the proposal, youll complete your book using the same easy-does-it method. While were at it, lets dispel a few myths. Myth One It takes a special talent to write books. It takes persistence. There are as many different kinds of writers as there are people. Some are young, some are elderly, many are in-between. You dont need any special writing talent to write books, nor do you need to be highly educated. Many successful writers have never completed high school. If you can write well enough to write a letter, you can write a book. Myth Two Writers starve in garrets. Many professional writers make incomes that would make doctors and lawyers envious. Most make reasonable incomes. If you decide to make a career of writing nonfiction books, the major benefit is that if you choose your books topic with care, your book can stay in print for many years. For each year that your books in print, you get two royalty checks. Lets say that you write two books a year for five years. At the end of the five years, if your books all stay in print, youll be getting ten royalty checks a year. These ongoing royalties are your nest-egg, profitable investments in your future.

Day Three: Write the blurb and outline your book The blurb is the back cover material for your book --- the selling points which will get people to buy the book. If you write the blurb before you write an outline, youre guaranteed not to wander off the track as you write your book. Writing the blurb will keep you on-track as you write your proposal and your book. Ive included two sample blurbs from my published books to show you how to write a selling blurb.

Day Four: Research your book proposal, and flesh out your books outline The fast and easy way to research your proposal you may not need to do any research at all. You may already know all you need to know.

Day Five: Write your proposal query letter, and submit it to agents and publishers How to write a SELLING query letter, with sample letters which have SOLD books.
