Mesothelioma is a type of cancer that affects the tissue linings of your bodys internal organs. The name comes from the main tissue affected, which is known as mesothelium responsible for producing a special fluid to enable movement of the organs. Among the organs that mesothelium protects include the stomach, lungs, and heart. Therefore, most cases of mesothelioma begin at any one of these organs. The extent of the tumor though can either be benign or cancerous. Table of Contents Mesothelioma - What Causes it?
