Weve all heard the stories. You know the stories Im talking about the ones about the Internet business owners who simply republish and repackage public domain information and earn millions of dollars in profits. Weve all heard about Walt Disney, Ted Turner, Rebecca Fine, Matt Furey and the many others who have used public domain information to make themselves very rich! But what all these success stories dont tell you and this is a painful fact that many, many entrepreneurs have had to learn on their own over the years is that getting a public domain work ready to sell can be hard and expensive work. Just look at the things that you have to do BEFORE you can start selling it on the Internet: 1. You have to find the lost public domain files. Forget about everything else. If you dont have the product, then you cant start. 2. You have to do copyright research to make sure that the work is in the public domain. This either requires you to go and search for hours to find the copyright information or hire an attorney to do it for you. Very costly and time consuming. 3. You have to scan the books to put them into digital format. If you want to republish a book, you need to get it into a digital format. This means scanning each page of the book unless you want to hire someone to type it for you. 4. You have to edit the content of the book. After you get it back from the scanners you will have a lot of editing to do because they dont scan it in a format that you can use. They put one page of your book onto one page in a Word document. This means that to even use it you have to spend hours making each line use the whole page. 5. You have to write the sales materials. After that, you will need to hire a copywriter to write a sales letter to help you sell the book. Good copywriters charge between $3000 and $10,000 for ONE SALES LETTER! The truth is this incredibly difficult process has claimed the dreams of many aspiring Internet entrepreneurs and I for one am sick of it!
