When you first begin to use Twitter, you will be able to log into the website, sign up for the account and start posting your brief updates right from the site. What you may not realize is that you can keep doing this in the same way, or use one of the many applications, more commonly known as apps, instead.

Twitter offers a variety of products to enable you to Tweet anywhere. There are also many third party products out there, most of which are also free services to use. Apps can make Twitter more accessible, more enjoyable or even easier to use. Are you looking for a few ways to use Twitter to your advantage?

The following are some of the ways in which others are using this social media website, with its 140 character maximum display. What will you update about your status? It may depend on how you plan to use Twitter. Every Twitter user who wants to become a fixture on the website, or that wants to have strong following, needs to ensure they are adding something useful to the mix. There are many ways to accomplish this goal. In particular, you want to become someone that people see as full of ideas, inspiration, insight or just a good friend. You want to be the person who you would most likely follow.

When you become active and interact in a positive way, your followers on Twitter will become stronger and you will see a positive reaction in your goals. One of the worst mistakes you can make as someone who is new to using Twitter is to be just like everyone else. This is sure to cause people to overlook you or to miss you simply because you are not unique. If you think of some of the people you know in the news media or in politics, usually the unique people (not necessarily in a negative way) stand out. The same is true for Twitter. Be original and you will drive more people to your website or blog using Twitter.
