We provide step by step details for finding the stocks to trade. It only requires looking up some information on the Internet. It takes about 5 minutes to do this. You only need to do this once a day or once a week (your choice). There's no need to look at stock charts or do any technical analysis. Once you have the stocks to trade, the next step is to determine the buy day. We provide full detailed step by step instructions to find the buy day. When the buy day arrives, you check the opening price of the stock. The opening price has to pass through a filter. If the opening price passes through this price check, then you buy the stock. All of this is explained in detail in the ebook. You then set a limit order to sell the stock at the target price and place a stop loss order to sell the stock at the stop loss price. The detailed instructions are in the ebook. That's it. Your work is done! The next step is to go get a snack, or go to the park or take a nap! One of three things will happen to your trade. It will hit the target price and you'll make a profit or it will hit the stop loss price and you'll take a loss. If it does neither of these two things within 60 days, then you sell the stock at the close of trading on the 60th day and you'll have either a profit or loss depending on the price you paid for the stock when you purchased it. You then take your money from the trade and rebalance and divide it using our money management technique. This is all explained in step by step detail in the ebook. Here's a few examples of stocks selected with the the Tailwind Trading System. The arrow on the chart is pointing to the buy day. You can see how the stock performed after that day.
