31, 2012, 1:03 AM Already a preliminary report, Doc! In the same batch of e-mail where the coded link was, you mention (by way of analogy) the Rose frequencies. I already had those, and have found their effects to be very subtle. Right now, Snow Lotus is playing, only because that happens automatically after a download. What a contrast! The new frequency is having a very profound effect on me as we speak. It feels as though it is stimulating in aspects (physical and mental) that should be stimulated, and calming on levels where that is desirable. A paradoxical effect, yes. It's hard to be objective with the sun's current levels of bombardment. I had felt overwrought, and engaging in a recent creative project (a guitar Sonata, in case you're interested) didn't help where poise was concerned. These new frequencies are a very welcome balm, and I can already say are having an effect greater than any I have tried heretofore. Doc, really. You have outdone yourself, no mean feat!
